I have no idea of what the heck I did just witnessed. Am I on drugs?. The game itself is very confusing at first, but after some time of looking around and pressing on things, I did get it to work out, you play as an ICE agent behind a desk, you get a task, the same task for each level, you repeat yourself a few dozen times to level up to do the next task, then you can buy things for your office, move them around what not, and that is as far as I gotten, each task is a matter of finding the task and answering a question or taking a call to answer another question, for the most part the questions remain the same for each task, the hardest part of this game is figuring out everything
